The Times' Daily Short Story.

An Old Man's Story

[Original.]

My grandfather, aged ninety, has often told me this story:

"When I was a young man there were two ways of carrying money—one in a knitted purse with rings, the other in a money belt. One autumn I was traveling in the west for the purpose of buying grain, and had with me a lot of gold. You see, in those days the currency wasn't worth much. If you went into a store to buy anything and plunked down a ten dollar bill the first thing the shopkeeper did was to pick up a magnifying glass to see if it wasn't counterfeit. The next thing was to take out a Bank Note Reporter and turn over the leaves to get at the standing of the bank issuing the bill. Then, like as not, he would hand your bill back to you, telling you that he hadn't any change. That's the reason I traveled with gold.

"Well, one day I was riding along a road when a man overtook me and got into conversation. He asked me if I could give him change for a two dollar bill, and I took my purse from my pocket, slipped one of the rings aside, drew out four Mexican quarters, a five franc piece, worth 95 cents, and a half dime. The Mexican and French coins were common in those days, and what I gave him was equivalent to $2.

"You carry your money in a purse," said he. "Why don't you use a money belt? They're safer."

"They're so safe that every thief goes for them the first thing he does. We may as well use the purse. It's handier, and if a robber wants your money he'll get it anyway."

"I prefer the money belt," he added, then began to talk of something else.

"At nightfall we stopped at a tavern. It was a dilapidated place, half the shutters gone and the porch rotted away. I didn't like the looks of the place, and the landlord was as rascally looking a man as ever I set eyes on.

"The room he put me in was in keeping with the rest. The plaster was half down from the ceiling and the lock on the door was broken. I hung up my trousers, with the purse in one of the pockets, on the bed post, then pulled the cotton 'comfort'—that's what we used to call those things, though how they got the name I don't know—up over me and went to sleep.

"In the middle of the night I awoke with the idea that there was some one in the room. At first I thought it might be imaginary and had come from a dream of the man who had taken an interest in where I kept my money, for I had gone to sleep thinking of him, but I heard a board in the floor creak and made up my mind that some one was really moving about. However, I valued my life more than my money and lay perfectly still. There in the gloom I saw something white come toward the bed till it stood within a yard of me. I showed no sign of being awake, and presently an arm was thrust out, a hand fumbled for the pocket of my trousers, was withdrawn, and I knew my purse had gone with it. I listened till I heard a faint sound which I knew was the closing of the door, then, turning over, I went to sleep.

"My grandfather, as I have said, told me this story a great many times, though he didn't remember ever having told it all, and I knew that at this point he expected me to express surprise that he could take the loss of his purse so coolly.

"Grandfather," I said, "how could you go to sleep so easily?"

"Well, my boy, I had escaped with my life, and that made me feel very comfortable."

"Go on, grandfather."

"The next morning I rose early, made some inquiries about my comrade of the day before, but when the landlord told me he had gone at daylight I didn't manifest any surprise or disappointment. I feared he might be in league with the man and make some excuse to detain me. Fortunately I had the ten dollar bill the thief had given me with which to pay him for my keeping, and he took it so readily, without examining it, that I knew he was glad to get rid of me, thinking that I had not discovered my loss in his house. He gave me in change the five franc piece and two of the quarters I had given the thief, and I rode off, feeling glad to get away from such a rascally place.

"Instead of traveling straight along the road to the town village of Chicago, as would be expected, I turned northward at the first road I came to and that night reached a point where St. Joseph, Mich., now stands. A shop went to Chicago twice a week, and in a couple of days I crossed the lake and reached port without accident. There I bought my grain."

"My grandfather paused, and I knew that he had arrived at another point for a question.

"But, grandfather, where did you get money to buy grain with? I thought the thief had taken your purse."

"So he did, boy; so he did, but he didn't get any money. You see, having to travel that way, every fall I was used to filling my purse with shot covered with a few dollars in silver and kept my gold in a money bag 'rapped across one shoulder and under the other. That's the reason why I was so free in drawing my purse before the stranger."

"Then I would make my customary observation. 'Why, grandfather, what a sly dog you must have been when you were a young man.'"

"Grandfather would chuckle and the next week would tell me the story again.

CLEAN SWEEP BY ODELL

Governor Expected to Shake Up State Organization.

HIS THIRD TERM UNSETTLED

He May Seek Reinstatement at Albany or May Try to Take Depew's Place in the United State's Senate.

New York, Nov. 27.—Governor Odell's accession to the position of chief authority in the Republican state organization will, it is said, be marked by changes all along the line. Politicians expect to see the men who have been conspicuously friendly with Senator Platt retired from the important places in the organization and men who have been more in sympathy with the governor put in as their successors.

It is predicted that Colonel George W. Dunn of Binghamton will relinquish the chairmanship of the Republican state committee and that William Barnes, Jr., of Albany will be his successor. Mr. Barnes is now chairman of the executive committee of the state committee.

It is also predicted that George R. Sheldon, after serving as interim as national committeeman, will not be reappointed and that this distinguished political office will be given to William C. Warren of Buffalo. It is customary to continue in office a national committeeman after an ad interim term, but custom is to go by the board in this case. The governor's friends have said that he was not consulted about the appointment of Mr. Sheldon in the first place and probably would not have agreed to it had he been consulted by Senator Platt.

M. Linn Bruce may not stand for re-election as president of the New York county committee. The governor's attitude toward Mr. Bruce is not fully understood. In semiprivate talks he has spoken in a friendly tone of Mr. Bruce and has commended his management of the recent municipal campaign.

County Chairman Bruce May Go.

But Mr. Bruce is counted among the supporters of Senator Platt, and whether he will fit in with the governor's plans for the reorganization of the party in New York city remains to be seen. In political circles nevertheless it is predicted that either Alexander T. Mason or Charles H. Murray will be elected president of the county committee on the third Thursday in December.

That the governor is planning a thorough shaking up of the local organization is well understood now. He will direct the process in person from the Republican club.

Whether the governor will run for office next year is unsettled apparently. It is believed in many quarters that in view of his increased political activity he will not seek a third term as governor. It is possible that he may elect to succeed Senator Depew. Senator Platt has declared himself in favor of the re-election of the junior senator, but if the governor wants to go to the senate Mr. Depew will probably be forced to step aside.

As was expected when the governor in guarded language claimed the supreme political authority in the state as his own Senator Platt refuses to concede publicly so much power to the governor. On his return to this city the senator said:

"I am still in command of the forces in this state. I don't know of any one in authority who disputes it. Governor Odell, however, will take a more active part in the politics of the state."

SCALPED BY INDIANS.

Northwestern University Falls Easy Victim to Carlisle Warriors.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Without opportunity for preliminary practice, but with the cheers of a big crowd ringing in their ears, Carlisle Indian football warriors faced the Northwestern university eleven on the American league ball park gridiron. Weather conditions were favorable to a fast and interesting contest, but was rather cold for spectators. For the first time this fall frost had made the ground hard.

The crowd was unique. Drawn from the territory contiguous to Northwestern, the spectators wore the colors of the popular Indians and rooted equally hard for Uncle Sam's wards and the Evanston men.

Northwestern kicked off at 10:10, choosing the south goal. Carlisle worked the ball to the twenty-four yard line and Johnson failed to kick goal. A snowstorm set in and the crowd cheered the Eskimo center Shoneck, who turned a somersault. Two plays by Sheldon and Charles netted Carlisle twenty yards and Sheldon scored a touchdown through right guard Bell after six minutes of play. Johnson kicked goal. In a few minutes more Carlisle made another touchdown. Score: Carlisle, 11; Northwestern, 0.

Sheldon and Charles carried the ball to Northwestern's eight yard line. Williams bucked the line for four yards and then went over for a touchdown and Johnson kicked goal. Rucker got the ball on a heeled catch at the forty yard line and Fleeter tried ineffectually for goal. Williams on a delayed pass ran forty yards, McGann tackling him from behind on the twenty yard line. Johnson failed on a try for goal from placement. The half ended with the ball in Northwestern's possession of their twenty yard line. Score: Carlisle, 17; Northwestern, 0.

Second Half.—Carlisle kicked off and Northwestern returned the ball. The Indians' speedy backs soon worked it down to the five yard line. Williams went over for another touchdown. Score: Carlisle, 23; Northwestern, 0. Kennedy heeled for a fair catch and Charles tried a place kick from the forty-five yard line without success. McGann's fumble of Charles' kick gave Carlisle the ball on Northwestern's twenty-five yard line. Johnson kicked goal from the eighteen yard line, Charles holding the ball. Carlisle, 28; Northwestern, 0.

JAPANESE WANT WAR

Government Has Difficulty In Restraining the Populace.

RUSSIA'S SILENCE SUSPICIOUS

Unless a Favorable Answer to Japan's Minimum Demands is Made Before Dec. 6 Hostilities May Be Unavoidable.

London, Nov. 27.—The Tokyo correspondent of the Times cables that the far eastern situation shows no improvement. The minimum proposals of the Japanese government were submitted last month, but the Russian government still preserves a silence which is producing a bad effect. It is feared that unless some basis of agreement shall be arranged before the opening of the Japanese diet Dec. 6 the situation may possibly be carried beyond diplomatic control.

The Peking correspondent of the Times, referring to the publication of exaggerated accounts as to the number of Russian troops reviewed at Port Arthur in October, says:

"While it is undeniable that Russia has largely increased and is still increasing her garrisons in Manchuria, it is equally undeniable that her preparations have been hurriedly made and are very incomplete and less advanced than Russia would desire the world to believe."

"Japan is apparently the only one of the powers to be undecided. Such official exaggeration is believed to indicate uneasiness in the face of the completeness of the Japanese preparations, a completeness which many observers believe will astonish the world."

Japan will reach a satisfactory settlement. Dr. Bedloe says the Japanese are eager for war with Russia and have no fear of the result. He thinks that the Japanese are stronger as a naval force in the east than Russia and are steadily strengthening their fleet by converting a number of mail steamers recently purchased into armed cruisers.

Optimistic Russian View.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.—A dispatch received here from Vladivostok notes the general subsidence of war talk in the Japanese press and says the Japanese consul general in Korea has issued a proclamation to quiet the alarm of his compatriots. A telegram from Port Arthur says the Russian torpedo boat Statny has been launched there, making the twelfth torpedo boat built at Port Arthur. The first six of these vessels have already been placed on a war footing.
